STATE OF THE ART

dental trauma and implants

January 23 - 27, 2012 Zell am See, Salzburg, Austria

Dear Colleagues,

The enthusiasm and high quality of the last two years in Zell am See are our motivation to invite you again to a week of stimulating presentations and professional workshops.

This time we will discuss important issues such dental trauma and implants, how to master the edentulous maxilla and mandible and learn about decision-making on the choice of materials in implant prosthetics.

As we have gathered several outstanding experts on soft tissue management we will also focus on aesthetic challenges in implant dentistry. In particular, we are delighted that Prof. Sculean will join us.

Oral aesthetics are an important aspect in dental implantology. As a dentist interested in aesthetics the right choice of therapy is often difficult. Many of us have probably learned it the hard way and not all new techniques can keep what they promised. This is often a result of the uncritical application of not sufficiently tested techniques or their inappropriate application.

During the last decade numerous flap designs and techniques in soft tissue management were introduced into oral surgery. Experts promoted their methods to be highly superior and that they can achieve outstanding results.

Nevertheless new techniques have lead to enormous development and improvement. They often enable us to restore lost tissue and natural aesthetics to a wide extent.

The beautiful ski-resort Zell am See and the superb Porsche congress venue will be again a perfect place to combine high-level continuing education and a short break from our daily clinical work-load. We look forward to welcoming you!
